Detectives Search for "Biggest Fence" Following Arrest of Five in Long Island.

Detectives are searching New York for the man they call "the biggest fence" in the city, following the arrest yesterday of five men at a garage of the Beren Brothers' roadhouse in Massena, L. I., where $218,000 worth of raw silk was recovered. The booty, hidden beneath paper, was stolen March 8 from New York Central freight cars at 85th Street and 11th Avenue.

Detectives of the West 36th Street station made the arrest after a two-day fight. The prisoners described themselves as Theodore and Benjamin Beren and Peter Jorgensen, No. 268 West 54th Street; Joseph Wall, living at the road house as an employee; and David Weiner of No. 2123 Flushing Avenue, Brooklyn. The men will be arraigned before United States Commissioner Hitzcock in the Federal Court today in answer charges of violating the Interstate Commerce law.

Representative of F. Strahler & Co., No. 35 Madison Avenue, and E. Gerli & Co., No. 119 East 27th Street, importers of raw silk, identified the loot as their property.
